Rowena

Lady Rowena stepped onto the castle parapet into the night air. After a long day of being courted by Richard de Bracy, she was weary. Tall, lean, and dark, he was a handsome sight. And yes, a union between Irish princess and English lord made political sense. So said her head. But what said her heart?

Below her outside the castle, Rowena heard voices draw near.

"Richard, I saw no room for hope today. The maid will not be wooed. We should be off to other hunting grounds."

And then a familiar voice—though with a new warmth. "Shall I tell you what I saw today? Into the hall danced a flame. Hair the color of autumn, eyes a blaze of blue. A vision clothed in a tapestry web. Then Lady Rowena spoke and I knew where I would be tomorrow. And the day after. As long as it takes."

The voices faded. In the hammering of her heart, Rowena heard the answer she would give Richard de Bracy on the morrow.

Veronika's Black Velvet Cloak

Veronika is off for an evening of adventures in the old part of the city. Is it the opera house or will she be meeting friends tonight? The mysterious Veronika never tells. She just suddenly arrives. Whatever her adventure is, she always brings her favorite black cloak. This rich, elegant traveling cloak is warm and cozy, perfect for keeping out the cool night air as she strolls through the ancient streets.

This superb cloak is made of deep black velvet with a radiant red lining and silver clasp. And some say there is a bit of magic in it as well.

Kohanna

Kohanna's impetuous spirit and great determination sparkle in her vibrant brown eyes. With her glossy hair and rosy complexion, she has a beauty that is as distinctive and timeless as any of her heroines from her favorite books.

Now, thanks to a wondrous jewel bequeathed to her by a great-aunt, she is able to actually journey into those realms and experience events from times long ago. Like her cousins Julia and Ana Ming, she must only wish the world into being to make it real.

Kohanna comes ready for school, wearing a uniform with white cotton pleated skirt, blouse and vest, above-the-knee white socks, a black school bag and black shoes. Yellow tie and hair ribbon accessories are the signature of her private school.

Julia

The Middle Ages, the Renaissance and that lovely mythic era that fairy tales describe. Those are the ages that fascinate Julia. She dreams of brave knights, fair ladies, and lordly monarchs — with perhaps a dragon or two — who inhabit a time that's never been and has always been.

Aunt Cordelia willed Julia a jeweled necklace. The gem, along with a deep and true wish, is enough to transport the wearer to where she longs to be.

Lively brown eyes and a glowing complexion reveal her imaginative mind and venturesome spirit. Too impatient to dress her hair, she lets it flow down her back in long chestnut waves. A knee-length brocade dress, accented with velvet jeweled belt, and brocade slippers suit her perfectly.

Thanks to her great-aunt, Ana Ming can step back to the Eastern empires of long ago. Aunt Cordelia bequeathed Ana Ming and her cousins a glorious jewel. That moonstone gem magically transports Ana Ming to wherever she wishes.

With gleaming waist-length black hair, glowing cheeks, and rose-touched lips, she has a timeless beauty. She wears an embroidered golden brocade dress, with Mandarin collar and delicate frog closures with matching slippers.
